

Matteson Bank Robbed In Wild West Fashion

Four bandits ranging in age from 30 to 35 years, held up and robbed the First State Bank of Matteson at ten o'clock Wednesday morning. The bandits drove in front of the bank in a Commander Studebaker car. They started operations by shooting up the bank in wild west fashion and then rushed in. W. S. Rea, secretary of the bank, Henry Schulze, cashier, Henry Nortmeier, assistant cashier, and Joseph Becker, bookkeeper, were quickly herded together and guarded by one of the bandits. The other two cleaned out the vault and cashiers' cages and the fourth one remained in the car. The loot amounted to $2300 in cash and $24,381.11 in securities, mostly all first mortgage papers.

A short time later it was found that the bandits had driven as far as Route 49 where they swapped cars, taking a Chrysler from that point and abandoned the Studebaker car.

The car used in the robbery was later identified as the property of Charles Krutchoff, Jr., son of County assessor Charles Krutchoff. It had been stolen earlier in the day from Fifty-sixth st. and Stony Island ave.

But, you won't have to feel bad, any more for this little bit of news ought to cheer you up. We'd appreciate it if you'd boost us a little on the subject by "broadcasting" it to your friends. TINLEY PARK Jr. GARDEN NOTES

By Fern Fulton

Saturday Sept. 27 eleven members of the Junior Garden club motored to Crete, Illinois to visit the Hentschel Nursery.

We were escorted through the grounds by Mrs. Hentschel, who was very courteous and entertaining, showing us many varieties of shrubs, trees and flowers.

One of the specimens in flowers, which was very interesting was a dahlia, Margaret Woodrow Wilson, measuring 8 1-2 inches in diameter. Mrs. Hentschel presented each member with a bouquet of flowers, a pencil and a ruler which was greatly appreciated.

After spending a very pleasant morning, we ended up by taking a few pictures of the club, on the beautiful nursery grounds.

We were also treated to some delicious fudge by Shirley Anderson. Thanks are due to Mrs. Hug, organizer of this club, who so kindly chaperoned these little buds also to Harold Lorenz and Mr. Bert Fulton for the use of their cars.

Mr. Wm. Funk has leased and paid the rental of the lot south of his garden.

This lot is to be turned into a beautiful garden of flowers by this club. The club thanks Mr. Funk very much for his kindness.

First regular meeting will be held Saturday, October 4th at the school at 1:30 p. m. sharp.

Sayers Herd of Orland Leads In Production

F. B. Sayers of Orland led the field for the month of September in group No. 2 of the Cook County Dairy Herd Improvement Association with an average of 1051 lbs., of milk and 32.6 lbs., of fat for his herd of 9 P.B.H. cows.

The general average for the month was 732 lbs., of milk and 24.3 lbs., of fat with 151 cows on test, 9 of 151 cows on test were dry while 10 cows each produced 40 lbs., of fat or over. One unprofitable cow was sent to the butcher.

J. Y. Parker of Lockport had the second herd of 10 P.B. and G.H. cows with an average of 927 lbs., of milk and 29.6 lbs., of fat. One of the herd was dry.

The herd of Orchard View farm at Justice Park, was third with an average production of 807 lbs., of milk and 27.9 lbs., of fat for the 7 P.B.B.S.

Mrs. Amelia Bettenhausen of Tinley Park had fourth place, her herd of 21 P.B. and G. H. cows making an average production of 765 lbs., of milk and 25.9 lbs., of fat. Two of the 21 were dry.

The fifth herd was owned by the Hyde Park Farm at Palos Park, and made an average of 801 lbs., of milk and 24.7 lbs., of fat for the 14 P.B.H. cows.

The herd of Mr. Sayers was fed a low protein ration of home grown grains and a high protein ration of bran linseed and gluten feed, each mixture was fed with a measure and according to production. Mr. Sayers has only been below the 30 pounds of fat mark one month and then he had an average of 29.9 lbs. This careful feeding, had no doubt, much to do with good production also the fact that he took advantage of information gained while he was testing in 1928 is helping him now.

J. Y. Parker, has also been feeding a low and a high protein ration and has been feeding very carefully according to production. Mr. Parker has been making a very creditable showing although he has not been mentioned in the high five before. He has felt that it payed to feed grain all year and the fact that his herd stood second and Mr. Sayers first should prove that it pays to feed well at all times.

W. North, chairman of the Will County Bond Issue right of way committee advises that the right of way question at the Marti school north of Mokena has been adjusted. He says that Enos Shaw of Chicago did sign dedication papers for a strip of land south of the school but that the papers had been mislaid and the right of way committee has been under the impression that Mr. Shaw had not signed. The papers were found after a checkup was made by the right of way committee.

For the time being the school yard will not be disturbed, according to Mr. North. The shoulders will not be built on the side of the road facing the school and tiles will be laid around the well which is on the right of way. An adjustment of this situation will be made later, Mr. North states.

Orland May Organize a Legion Post

An invitation is extended to all ex-service men living in the Orland, Palos, Worth and Mokena district to meet in the Orland Park High School Auditorium on Monday evening, the 6th of October at 8 p. m. for the purpose of organizing a Post of the American Legion. There is a real need for an American Legion Post in this district and a preliminary survey shows that there are sufficient ex-service men available to build a strong organization which will not only perpetuate the memories and ideals for which they fought in the world war, but provide a common meeting place to renew old comradeships and old friendships as well. A strong organization of ex-service men, who have proven their loyalty to their country in time of war can now under the organized banner of the American Legion prove themselves invaluable to their community in times of peace by fostering and perpetuating the ideals of true Americanism and good citizenship. It is to be hoped that every ex-service man in the district will attend this meeting on October 6th and make the proposed new Post a strong reality. Any eligible person who is unable to attend can have his name placed on the roster by communicating with Sherman S. Knox, (Past Commander of Post No. 305) at Orland Park, Ill. Phone Orland 100W.

The Tinley Park depot of the Rock Island shows a good increase of monthly 60 ride commuter tickets purchased thru the local agent. Last year only 20 of these tickets were bought here, the balance being purchased in Chicago. Thru the efforts of the local agents the sales are now 70 tickets a month bought thru the local office, thus increasing the revenue of the local office about $500 a year over last year.

The refreshment committee had a large decorated cake baked by our local baker, with the "Greetings Dad's Nite" in colored frosting. Rev. Hopkins who claimed to have the largest family, was asked to cut and serve it which he did very happily.

At our regular meeting Friday, Oct. 3rd the upper room of which Mrs. Sandigge is teacher is to entertain the P. T. A. with a lesson in hygiene. Then as a surprise to the pupils they will be given a treat by the P. T. A.

We desire to thank each and every one who helped make Dad's Nite the success that it was.

To Take Train Time Up With Commerce Com.

Mokena students attending the Joliet High School and who are obliged to ride the morning Rock Island train to Joliet, are late for class every morning as the train does not get to Joliet in time for the opening of the first classes. The matter has been taken up with the Rock Island passenger department by J. C. Nielsen, the local agent, and he has been advised by that department that they could not make any change in the time of this train on account of the express business this train has to handle out of Chicago.

L. G. Bruder, president of the Mokena Emerson Republican Club advises that the matter will be presented to the Commerce Commission and may be taken up for hearing at their meeting in Chicago Oct. 14.

Western ave., Joliet. Mrs. Carlquist has for a number of years been employed by the Rock Island railroad in the office of the Auditor of Disbursements. Mr. Carlquist is an electrician employed by the E. J. & E. railroad in Joliet. The well wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Carlquist from their many friends.

Tinley Legion Installation An Impressive Sight

The largest crowd that ever attended a ceremonial meeting of the Legion in Tinley Park gathered at the American Legion Community Hall last Saturday evening to witness the installation of the Post's officers for 1931. After the presentation of colors and prayer by Chaplain Campbell, the retiring Commander, Frank Hoar made his farewell address. In speaking of the purposes of the American Legion, Commander Hoar read the preamble to the national constitution of the Legion and stated that nothing he could say would so adequately express the aims of this great organization. He thanked the officers and members for the wonderful cooperation extended to him during his two terms as Commander, and predicted that under Commander Rowden the Post would attain new records in all branches of Legion work.

The installation ceremony was in charge of District Commander O'Connell. The District Sergeant-at-arms escorted the newly elected officers to the front of the hall and presented them to the District Commander, using the full ritual of the Legion. Comrade O'Connell delivered the charge, swore the officers to their oath and delivered to them their badges of office.

George Rowden, the new commander, was the unanimous choice of the post for his office. Commander Rowden fully deserves all honors the Post can give him. He served with distinction in Hdq. Co., 28th Inf., 1st Division and was wounded in action. During the past two years, he has been the Senior Vice-Commander of the Post, Chairman of the entertainment Committee, member of the Boy Scout and Publicity Committees and custodian of Post property. He possesses all the necessary qualifications for his office and there is no doubt that under his leadership the Post will prosper. His fellow townsmen honored him last April by electing him to the Board of Education.

Corporal Chas. A. Wallin, Co. F., 108th Eng. 33rd Division, richly merits his selection as Senior Vice-Commander. He has been Finance Officer of the Post since its organization and if there ever was a better man for that work this Post knows not where to find him. Comrade Wallin has been active in all departments of Legion work and is a tireless and conscientious Legionnaire.

The new Junior Vice-Commander, Corporal Paul Griswold, Hdq. Co. 8 Inf., 8th Division has completed two terms as adjutant of the Post. He will also act during 1931 as the Post delegate to Cook County Council.

Commander Rowden has selected E. B. Campbell as his adjutant and the choice is very popular with the Post. Comrade Campbell, who served in the General Headquarters Board has been the very efficient Chaplain of the Post for two years. He has for his new work the necessary business training and experience that are so necessary in the administrative work of the Post. Comrade Campbell is a talented singer and musician and will, no doubt, promote music in the Post in addition to his other duties.

To succeed Comrade Campbell as Chaplain the Post has elected the Rev. Paul T. Sanders, pastor of the Orland Park M. E. church. Comrade Sanders was a Lieutenant in the Graves Registration Service 22nd Army Corps during the World War. He was ordained shortly after the war and has been very successful in his chosen profession. As a man, a minister and a "good fellow", the new chaplain has made a "hit". For its new Finance officer, the

Seek To Put License On All Mokena Business

The village fathers of Mokena feel that the village is in need of added revenue and that more special licenses should be imposed and plans are under way to draft a new special license ordinance.

Alderman Richard Hensel who is one of the leading advocates of the proposed measure says that the village is losing a lot of revenue by not having more special licenses. Alderman Hensel advocates that every business man doing business in Mokena should pay a special license and this list would consist of the following businesses in Mokena: barber shop, lumber yard, coal dealers, hardware stores, painters, restaurant, blacksmith shops, gasoline tank trucks. Alderman Hensel further recommends that every motor truck delivering ice, bakery products, soft drinks, ice cream, fruit and milk in Mokena, be made to pay a special license. Just what the rates for these licenses should be has as yet not been determined.

Tea and grocery trucks from Joliet or Chicago soliciting orders also would be included in the new special license act.

It is understood that some of the board members are inclined to feel that the present near beer license of $50 per year is excessive and should be reduced.

Post chose a man who, although he has been a resident of the village for only a few months, has made himself well and favorably known. Adolph Ceithaml, the only sailor among the new officers, served on the U. S. S. Wyoming of the Grand Fleet. There is no doubt that this honest and affable Comrade will administer the financial office of the Post on the same high plane as his predecessor.

Alderman Big Boy Art Schoeneck of the 13th Inf. 8th Division is the new Sergeant-at-Arms. Because of his size, his powers as alderman, and his friendship with the Chief of Police, the Post can rest assured that good order will prevail at all the meetings.

From time immemorial, it has been the custom to reward fighting men with various badges of honor. This custom is common in various organizations. State Commander J. Poorman and Eddie Weirtz, editor of the "Illinois Legionnaire" in well chosen words presented Past Commander Hoar with a Past Commander's badge and a ring. Frank Hoar, as the first Commander of a new Post has done things that have made his Post widely known. As he holds the honorable position of Past Commander, his advice and counsel will be sought by the new officers. He has worked hard and well during the formative years of his Post and he retires with the good will of every man in the Post.

The Post was highly honored in having as its most distinguished guests, State Commander Poorman. In a stirring address, Commander Poorman told of the aims of the Department of the Post and to accomplish during 1931. Past District Commander Boyle, Mayor Wm. Funk of Tinley Park, Past Commander Rick-ets of Englewood Post, Editor Semmler of the "Tinley Park Times" and District Commander O'Connell who were called upon for brief addresses.

A surprise number on the program was the presentation to the new commander of 33 paid up memberships and three new applications for 1931.

The presentation was made by Comrade Stoltenberg who with another member, had worked for two weeks in an attempt to give the new commander a 100 per cent Post. Comrade Stoltenberg deserves much credit for originating the idea and for working so hard for its fulfillment.

After the ceremonies, there was dancing and refreshments. Everyone present had a good time. The Post feels highly honored by the large attendance and the interest shown.

Sixty fresh cases of infantile paralysis reported within ten days caused Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, to issue a general warning. Separation of sick and well, rigid quarantine of patients, pasteurization of milk and proper treatment before the onset of paralysis are listed as essential control measures. Doctor Hall says: "Infantile paralysis is transmitted from person to person largely by contact. Thus the sick and the carriers are the source. There are many more carriers than actual cases of infantile paralysis so that avoiding crowds and close contact is a helpful preventative. Mild cases that may appear to be nothing more than a bad cold are probably the most dangerous in spreading the disease."

The case of J. B. Colgrove, former banker of Taylorville, sentenced to an indeterminate term in the Southern Illinois penitentiary, was filed in the office of Charles W. Through a conference between officials of the state department of public health and public welfare, arrangements have been made whereby tests are available for detecting defective hearing among the pupils in the schools of Illinois. Under the direction of Daniel T. Cloud, managing officer of the state school for the deaf at Jacksonville, experts will call at the schools where their service is requested and an audiometer, the latest scientific equipment for conducting tests for hearing, will be used. School officials seeking such tests should apply to the state department of public health at Springfield or to the State School for the Deaf at Jacksonville.

Director Ralph F. Bradford of the state department of conservation is appealing to city officials, manufacturing concerns and citizens to help prevent pollution of the inland streams of Illinois, which he states is primarily due to the discharge of sewage and to some extent to the dumping of refuse from canneries and factories into streams. It not only destroys the fish but also brings about conditions injurious to public health and creates offensive odors.

"How can any man start the day properly if he wakes in a room where the paint and wall paper are constantly making faces at the furniture?"

SPECIAL DISHES

All cooks enjoy using the common things in such a manner that an unusual dish or combination is the result.

Pepper Relish.—Take two cupfuls of finely chopped peppers (green and red may be used) and pack the cup solidly full in measuring. Use a food chopper and put the peppers through the finest knife twice. Measure into the kettle, using just enough of the juice to flood the cup level. Add six and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of vinegar, mix well and bring to a boil, set aside uncovered for 20 minutes. Bring again to a boil and stir constantly, boiling hard for two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in one bottle of pectin, stir and skim for just eight minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating. Pour quickly, cover the hot relish with a good cover of paraffin. This makes about nine glasses.

Rolls Orange Wafers.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add gradually one cupful of sugar and the grated rind of an orange, beat until light. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in one tablespoonful of cold water, add to one-half cupful of orange juice alternately with two cupfuls of flour. Beat well and spread on buttered baking sheet in the thinnest possible layer. Bake in a moderate oven. When baked cut into squares and roll each square while hot over the handle of a wooden spoon. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and arrange on a dolly-covered plate.

Banana Butter.—This makes a delicious cake filling. Use ripe, mellow fruit and take three cupfuls of the crushed pulp, add six and one-half cupfuls of sugar, the juice of a lemon and one-fourth teaspoonful of butter. Mix and bring quickly to a boil, boil one minute, stirring constantly over the entire bottom, adding one bottle of pectin. Remove from the heat and stir frequently for eight minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating. Pour quickly into cups and cover with hot paraffin. It sets slowly. Makes nine to ten glasses.

Basque Peace Officers

Kept Reasonably Busy

Unique is the miguelete. Everywhere in Spain, from the gates of the royal palace in Madrid out to the remotest, humblest hamlets, the civil guardsmen have the right of way—except in the Basque province of Guipuzcoa. The Basques have their own police, called migueletes, who wear a jaunty uniform of baggy red trousers, a blue tunic with a cape fixed to the shoulders and a red bolina on their heads (a contrast to the civil guards' yellow trappings and gray or black uniforms and of oilskin). Although a soldier, armed and trained as such, the miguelete, instead of parading about in idleness, has many civilian duties. He carries all the official mail in the province, conveys lunatics to the modern asylum, inspects the roads, teaches the illiterates to read and write, collects telephone tolls and also taxes. A Basque is always ready with a bet, which is the common way of ending a dispute about handball, tree felling, grass mowing, stone lifting, swimming, about what weight his pair of oxen will drag or the fighting powers of a ram from his herd. On every bet a percentage is due and is collected by the miguelete. It is the miguelete also who takes charge of the savings bank accounts, and so great is the confidence he inspires among the peasantry that old and young hand over their hard-earned reales and pesetas to this red-legged cop. What prestige! Indeed, it has been proposed that the League of Nations study the corps with a view to making it a world organization.

Ben Damph Is Damp

Ben Damph, a rambling country mansion belonging to the Lovelace family, is perhaps about the most inaccessible house to be found even in Scotland. It is also one of the wettest. Rain falls almost continuously. The nearest village is about eleven miles away, and the household is consequently, of necessity, self-supporting. Fish from the loch, cattle from the pasture, and game from the moor provide the staple sustenance of those staying at Ben Damph.

Damage by Hail

It is estimated that throughout the world hail extracts from the human race a toll of something like $200,000,000. Hailstones are sometimes bigger than oranges. A case has been described in which hailstones buried themselves to a depth of more than half a yard in the soil of a meadow.

Qualified Freedom

Freedom is a matter of economics; there is little use in claiming to be free if one is economically dependent. —Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Whole Page of Wisdom in One Short Sentence

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, after campaigning for her husband, said at a little dinner:

"Before another primary campaign, I hope instructions to candidates' wives will be glazed and framed or distributed like Baedekers. The advice is very personal and contradictory. One says 'talk all you want to but don't have your picture taken'; another says 'keep quiet and be photographed'; another suggests baking a pie or a cake.

"I think the soundest advice came from an old friend who said: 'Don't break rule number six,' and when I asked him what rule number six was, he replied:

"Don't take yourself too seriously."

"After that had sunk in I asked him what were the five rules that preceded it.

"There aren't any others," he replied."

Knew His Record

"Babe" Adams, the veteran of the Pittsburgh team, told a baseball story at a baseball banquet in Pittsburgh.

"George Jones," he said, "was very proud of his batting. Well, one afternoon in the middle of a game the telephone bell rang and a voice said: 'I'd like to speak to George Jones, please.'"

"George," said the telephone attendant, "has just gone in to bat."

"Right-o," said the voice, "I'll hold the wire."

"Support Your Patrol" is the admonition to school children on the October safety poster just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club to more than 25,000 school rooms in the northern half of Illinois and the northern section of Indiana.

The school boy's patrol is regarded by the Motor club, which sponsored it for more than ten years, as the most effective means yet devised for the protection of school children from the dangers of traffic. Members of the patrol, distinguished by white Sam Browne belts and badges stand on the curb at intersections near the school and escort their classmates across the street during opportune breaks in the traffic. They are on duty before and after the morning and afternoon sessions.

The club distributes the posters as an additional means of instilling the necessity for safety in the minds of the pupils. A letter to teachers accompanies each poster. The letter contains suggestions as to the best methods of teaching safety.

Tinley Park Garden Club Notes

On Friday, Sept. 19th, the regular meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Bert Fulton and Mrs. Lulu Rogers.

It was a beautiful day and twenty-three members were present. We were also overjoyed to have in our midst two of our tiny garden buds, Baby Mancke and Baby Berg. These little buds attracted quite a bit of attention.

An invitation was received and read from the Tinley Park Post of the American Legion inviting all Garden Club members to a public installation Sept. 27th.

Local women interested in the Chicago Flower and Fruit Guild have been invited to a "visitation" of the settlements and social centers which are the beneficiaries of flowers collected by the Guild.

The last two weeks of the season of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, which receives flowers and fruit from suburban gardens for distribution to institutions and hospitals, is to be devoted to a drive to collect fruits, jellies, jams and vegetables.

Plans are under way now for a program of Christmas activities for the benefit of the following institutions, which the Guild serves:

Visiting Nurse Association, South Dearborn Station, University of Chicago Settlement, Church Home for Aged Persons, Billings Hospital, Women and Children's Hospital, Mary Crane Nursery, Infant Welfare, Hull House, Madonna Settlement, Steward Park, Infant Welfare, Visiting Nurse Association, North Avenue Station, Visiting Nurse Association, Central Free Station, Infant Welfare Station, Chase House Settlement, Northwestern Settlement, Michael Reese Settlement, Infant Welfare, Howell Neighborhood Settlement, Gad's Hill Visiting Nurses, Chicago Light House, Chicago Commons, St. Elizabeth, Land Community, N. W. Humboldt Station, Visiting Nurse Association, Association House, Infant Welfare.

The annual meeting of the Garden Club has been changed from April to October.

Nominating and auditing committees were elected to prepare for our annual meeting. At the close of this long meeting delicious cakes and a cool drink was served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Lulu Rogers and her committee were very busy planting some more new Iris, and peony plants. Mrs. Wm. Funk helped to plant the rock garden.

The Iris path donated to the park from the gardens of the following: Mr. Keuch, Mr. Rooker, Mrs. Goebel, Mager, Nylander, and Hartman. Mrs. Hartman also gave the peonies. Mr. Rooker came over to the park and admired the work of the civic department of the Garden Club. Mr. Rooker also made some helpful suggestions in behalf of the Tinley Park Lions Club.

The Tinley Park Garden Club appreciates the donations of these Iris plants very much from folks who are not members.

All these plants, flowers and shrubs are for the beauty of our town and for all the folks to see and enjoy. The Garden Club will keep on doing more and more to help beautify our town.

The following letter was received and read at our meeting by Mrs. Chas. Nielsen.

For the hay fever sufferers we trust will greatly benefit you. Do you know that ragweed causes more than 90 per cent of the hay fever; and that we are making a campaign for the eradication of ragweed. To be truly effective the movement should be nation-wide, as ragweed pollen is carried many miles by the wind.

Will not you, a sufferer, help us in this campaign by urging the destruction of all ragweed, both the common and the giant, in your community

Can you not impress upon them that the health of their community should be worth a great deal to them?

Yours very truly,

ORLAND PARK

While James Tilsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tilsey was cranking his Ford Monday morning, the engine backfired, breaking his right arm.

Rev. Paul Sanders was installed chaplain of the Tinley Park Post of the American Legion last Saturday.

James Cammon says he was much surprised to learn that the judgment he had recently secured for $225 against Judge Henry Waje had been reversed by the Mount Prospect justice. He claims he had not been notified of the decision and that the first he had heard of it was when he saw the story in last week's News-Bulletin.

The annual bazaar and supper held by the Ladies Guild of the Orland Park M. E. church Thursday afternoon and evening was well attended and was a big success in every way.

There will be no church services at the Orland Park M. E. church this coming Sunday on account of the annual conference. The Sunday following, however, there will be a special service with Rev. Thomas of Palos Park in charge. Rev. Paul Sanders will preach at Palos on that day.

A sign that business on the Wabash is picking up was evidenced on Monday morning of this week when the freight train known as "the nigger local" which has been out of service all summer, resumed its run again from Chicago to Brisbane. This train does all the switching and picking up of freight between all the points from Chicago to Brisbane.

Rumor has it that "the goose" which has been out of service all summer may be but back into service in the next ten days. This train did a lot of express hauling while in service before between Decatur and Chicago.

Joseph Creer who has been conducting the Orland Dairy for the past ten years, has sold out to Mr. Zudema of Worth who will take over the local routes October 1st. Mr. Zudema has been conducting a dairy at Worth for sometime.

Rev. Wm. Medlar and family have gone on an auto trip to St. Louis. They are expected home this week.

A bunco party was held at the St. Michael hall Saturday evening.

B. Y. Haus former conductor on the Wabash railroad has been given a county job as inspector of concrete roads and entered on his new duties last week.

The hunting season opened last Wednesday and a number of mud hens were shot in the pond north of town. Great excitement was created during the shooting when Bob Carter who was watching the hunt suddenly screamed and said he was shot. Examination failed to reveal any mark of a shot or wound. He said he had been shot in the throat but it was believed that he was badly frightened when some stray shot came his way and it was only his heart throbbing in his throat. Anyway he is all right.

The county has game wardens on duty at the local forest preserves from which all hunters are barred.

The Orland Fire Department will hold their monthly business meeting next Monday night at the village hall.

A big force of men have been engaged the past few weeks in grading 159th street thru Orland twp.

Postmaster J. H. Schmadeke would be very much gratified if his patrons will follow the following suggestions:

Write the name and address plainly and completely.

Addressing all mail for Chicago and other business centers to street and number, including the room number if it is known.

Using the designation North or South, East or West, in addition to the street number, where such designation is a proper part of the address.

Putting your own complete address in the upper left hand corner of the envelope or package.

Placing the stamp in the upper right hand corner.

Avoiding the use of unusually small or unusually large or odd-shaped envelopes.

Wrapping all packages carefully in heavy wrapping or corrugated paper and using strong twine, with knots tied securely.

And most important of all, you can help by depositing your mail in the post office as soon as it is ready.

The mailing public can greatly help the post office by following the above suggestions.

MOKENA

The bakery sale held in the McGovney real estate office by the M. E. Ladies Aid Saturday afternoon was well attended and the bakery goods were quickly sold.

Vacation days are over for Mokena fishermen. Will Lynk returned Thursday from Eagle River, Wis., as also did Herman Schweser.

Mrs. Frank E. Hirsch attended the funeral of Peter Kich, an old time friend of the family, held in Blue Island Friday.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new house Edwin Hirsch is building.

Rev. Harold Sandall, pastor of the M. E. church has returned from attending the Nebraska M. E. conference.

Herbert Grater who has been employed at the Automatic Telephone Company plant in Chicago, has been missing from home over two weeks. Inquiry at his place of employment brought the answer he had not been there for over ten days. His invalid wife is in need of help.

A large piece of plaster fell from the ceiling of the council room in the village hall one night last week. A leak in the roof is said to have been the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Durringer, Mr. and Mrs. Mangold and daughter Marcella and friend of Roseland were guests at the Wm. Semmler home, Sunday.

Half of Bremen May Lose Vote

Petition Out to Divide District 143

Three months ago a petition came out in Posen to divide school district 143; now sufficient signers have been obtained to present to the township school trustees. Two-thirds of the voters in the seceding territory must sign according to law. If the petition should be granted, a division would be made at Kedzie ave., leaving Midlothian and Robbins in one district and Posen in the other. The Posen group proposes that two-thirds of the assessed valuation of the district would be left to Midlothian and Robbins, the remainder would be in the Posen district.

The three township school trustees who must pass on the petition, if and when presented, are Edward A. Brown of Robbins, Samuel D. Powers of Oak Forest and Winfield Roesner of Markham. They may call a special meeting or let the matter rest until their regular meeting in March. Their action must be approved by County Superintendent Tobin.

In answer to the query, "How will this affect the tax levy on the new Midlothian school?", it was found that $27,000 of the cost had been levied on 1929 tax anticipation warrants; $60,000 in 1930 warrants. The balance of $50,000 may not come before 1931. There is no question but Posen would have to pay its share of the warrants already issued; the balance would depend on whether it is permitted to withdraw before the remainder is issued.

From inquiries in Posen it is learned that one of the reasons for the step is traceable to the last election. It is claimed that the spirit of the "Gentlemen's Agreement" entered into when the district was formed would permit each village of the 3 to pick its own representatives. However the law provides that all the voters in the district can vote on all the candidates. So far it has worked inasmuch as no one village has a controlling vote or more than its share of members.

Legal Objections Overruled on Posen Sewer Project

All legal objections to the Posen sewer project were overruled in court Friday, according to village attorney J. Otto Wielogrecki. Law firms representing the objectors were Thomas Donovan, Harry Tiffany, George P. Lackford, Merle and Walker, Maloney, Ooster and Whitehead, John C. Lowe, Irving Reprow, Bent and Freeman, Walter O'Boyle, Longworthy, Stevens, McCabe and McCormack.

A decision has not been rendered on the distribution of cost, but this is a minor matter now.

Woman's Club Activities

The Woman's Club held their social meeting last Friday afternoon. In spite of the chilly weather there was a fine turnout. Mrs. Edgar Mills and Mrs. James Hickey of Oak Forest were the hostesses.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Mills; the doll by Mrs. Hickey. First prize in bridge was won by Mrs. Horney, second by Mrs. Hollearn and booby by Mrs. Tebow; first in buncos was won by Mrs. Nicholson and second by Mrs. Hickey.

The regular business meeting will be held at the club house at 2 p. m. Friday, Oct. 10. Each member is urged to attend as at that time the by-laws of the club are to be voted on.

Markham Sets Public Hearing on Supplemental

A public hearing on proposed supplemental assessments to Markham Special Assessments No. 1 and No. 56443 was set for October 9 (the next regular meeting night) by the board of local improvements of that village at their meeting on Thursday of last week. The supplemental on No. one will be $40,986.68; on No. 56443 it will be $27,377.46. The additional levy is made necessary by a shortage of funds levied on the original assessments, which was passed by previous boards.

The sidewalk job on the west side of Dixie Highway, known as Markham No. 11, has been confirmed in court. It is expected that bids will soon be let.

An indemnity bond, protecting the village funds from loss, has been received from the State Bank of Blue Island, village depository.

Trustee Peter Lystra objected to the magistrate's report when he found that one third of the cases had been dismissed, saying that unless traffic could be regulated and respect for the law maintained, the police department might as well be dispensed with. Magistrate Stodd countered with concrete examples of the difficulties encountered in enforcing the law. The police department, by the way, has an excellent rating with the Chicago Motor club.

WHO'S WHO in MIDLOTHIAN

Mrs. Martha Treankler

When the editor started this series on Midlothian people, he started with the idea that it would make us better acquainted with one another. In interviewing Mrs. Martha Treankler, it was brought home to him that such was being accomplished. For Mrs. Treankler was born near the editor's home town and both remember the howling of timber wolves and seeing bear and deer in their youth.

Mrs. Martha Treankler was born in October, 1886, in Marshfield, Wisconsin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schroeder, and attended grade school there. She entered high school at Englewood, living with an aunt in Chicago after the death of her father, but graduated from Wausau, Wis., high school. She attended the Wausau Teachers College for a summer session. Her mother still lives in Marshfield.

At the age of 20 she began teaching in Wisconsin. In 1908 she was married to Fred C. Treankler, of Marsh, Wisconsin, a lumber town no longer on the map. They have one daughter Enid, now Mrs. E. L. Dittmars of Houston, Texas. For a time they lived in Gilman, Wisconsin, a tiny place in the heart of the timber belt. Mrs. Treankler considers this the most interesting period of her life — watching the cutting and milling of timber, the operation of paper mills, hunting deer, tramping through the woods and observing wild life. When their daughter started school she found bear tracks on her path. Another time she saw what she thought to be a dog, but which turned out to be a wolf.

In 1919 the Treanklers moved to Ill., and Mrs. Treankler taught for four years in Palos Township. Seven years ago she began teaching in Midlothian, having four grades and 42 children in one room; now she has 30 pupils in one grade. Mrs. Treankler, who is now acting principal of the Midlothian school has taught every graduating class since the school was established — 125 graduates in all.

Like all other teachers, she is looking forward to the opening of the new school and the resumption of full-time teaching.

WMAQ—7:00 p. m. Sun. Oct. 5
WLS—1:20 p. m. Thurs. Oct. 9
WCFL—7:30 p. m. Wed. Oct. 8

The first of the "Chevrolet Chronicles", with Captain Albert B. Batson of the Fifth Marines describing those stirring events in Chateau Thierry back in 1918 which brought him the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre and the Naval Cross will go on the air locally as shown above.

The program is sponsored by local Chevrolet dealers, and is the first of a series of weekly broadcasts from this station featuring America's great martial figures, most of whom wear the highest honors within the power of the Government to grant for valorous deeds in action. The "Chronicles" are being broadcast nationally through more than a hundred radio stations.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, ace of American aces and himself awarded the Congressional Medal of honor and many other decorations, will act as host of the evening and introduce Captain Batson to the air audience. Musical numbers arranged by Frank Black and Gustave Haenschen will precede and conclude Cap. Batson's description of his experiences. The program will be of a half hour's duration.

Capt. Batson, who the year before the war was an All-American end and captain of the Minnesota football team, was cited for conspicuous heroism in action while a first lieutenant in the 5th regiment of the U. S. Marines, 2nd division. His official citation reads: "Although shot in both legs while leading his platoon through the woods at Hill 142 near Chateau Thierry, France, on June 6, 1918, he refused treatment until after he had assured himself that every man in his platoon was under cover and in good firing position."

The details back of this generalized statement of fact—the "Come on, you kids; you can't expect to live forever" of Sergeant Dan Daly, twice holder of the Medal of Honor as he led a charge into a hail of machine gun bullets; the coolness of mere youths under fire; the self sacrifice of a former Kansas football player who rushed into the open to draw the fire of a machine gun that his comrades might capture it—will be described by Captain Batson.

Body of Man Found Sunday in Markham

The decomposed body of a white haired man was found by a boy in a creek in Markham at noon Sunday. It is estimated that the body had been there for sometime, possibly a year, although the boy had been there in December and had seen no trace of it at that time.

From the fact that there was no coat and the body was clad in heavy underwear and kaki trousers, it is believed that the man was an inmate of Oak Forest institution. The case was turned over to Sergt. Orgel of the county police and Mohr, Hickey and Reiser removed the body.

At the inquest which was held on Monday at 10 a. m., a verdict was returned of "Undetermined drowning."

Tuesday Last Chance to Register

Despite appeals from Republican and Democratic headquarters and County clerk Sweitzer's warning that personal registration is necessary to vote in November, less than half the voting strength of Bremen Township was on the pool books at nine o'clock last Saturday night.

The poorest showing was made in precincts with a large farm vote. In Tinley Park, it is said, the farmers claim they will vote in November even though they have not registered. A similar attitude of protest seems to be general among Republicans throughout the township.

The Democrats, however, are jubilant as their precincts have shown a higher percentage registered than the others, and with a low total registration stand a better chance than ever before of carrying South Cook County.

Republican organizations are making every effort now to gather a fleet of cars to transport Bremen voters to the registration booths on Tuesday, October 7th. By personal calls at every house they hope on that date to offset their weak showing Saturday. The Democrats have had a transportation unit organized for some time.

In total registration Midlothian, with 812, stood seventh among the seventy-one Cook County towns to make returns Monday morning. Of these 424 registered at Donato's, 388 at Reali's on Cicero Avenue. This represents fifty-two percent of the total vote cast in the last election. Cook County as a whole showed only a twenty-nine per cent registration.

Among those largely responsible for the high Midlothian average was Village President Richard White, who personally brought twenty-five voters to the clerks.

The following table shows last election's total vote and the first day of registration in the various Bremen precincts:

PRECINCT	Last Vote	Sat. Reg.
1 Posen	426	200
2 Robbins	790	376
3 Mid. (Donato's)	771	424
4 Mid. (Reali's)	800	388
5 Tinley Park	753	250
6 Markham (Steele's)	170	45

As this is the last issue of the Messenger before the final date set for registration the editor wishes to emphasize that no one will be allowed to vote in the November election unless registered before nine o'clock on Tuesday night, October 7th. To the women he wishes to state the only question that may be asked regarding their age is—"Are you past 21?"

Officials in Worth and other places report a very light registration among the women because of a story spread that they would have to give their exact age.

Oak Forest Hunts Missing Girl

While searching parties hunting her scoured the Rock Island right of way, the Oak Forest woods and the roads around her home, little four year old Betty Borst of Waverly ave., and 154th st., sat contentedly munching candy and jam-covered bread in the Root home a short distance from her father's cottage.

Last seen standing on the Waverly Avenue hill at 6:15 just as dusk set in, little Betty vanished from sight for over two hours. Fearful that she might have wandered onto the right of way or into the forest preserve, neighbors led by the girl's father, William Borst started a search immediately.

The county police and boy scouts of troop 1, Midlothian arrived on the scene shortly after Betty was found.

PRETTY WEDDING

A very pretty wedding took place Friday night at the home of Miss Margaret McGraw, when Nancy Marguerite Streddor, daughter of Mrs. E. Streddor became the bride of Lloyd Monroe Curtis of Chester, Virginia.

Rev. J. L. Mellott of the Congregational church of Blue Island performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and tulle with an embroidered net veil and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies. She was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Charles Adams. J. B. Elliott of Chicago was best man for the groom and the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Adams was matron of honor.

As the bridal procession came down the stairway leading into the living room where the ceremony was performed, Mrs. R. H. Hodgman sang, "I Love You Truly".

The home was very prettily decorated in white.

The young couple left Saturday morning for Chester, Virginia, where they will make their future home, stopping enroute at interesting spots.

Mrs. Artkamp is coming to the Forest Ridge Woman's club on Oct. 14 at which time she will give a talk on the history of quilts dating back to 960 B. C.

The Mud of Midlothian

Having met and vanquished an Aierdale in tooth to tooth combat, a neighboring police chief is reported to be in training for a hugging bout with one of the bears at 147th and Ridgeland.

After the bad news about corn and wheat it gives us great pleasure to announce that there is no danger of a bristle crop failure now that Axel Couch's lip-teaser has become almost visible.

We don't think much of one correspondent's humor. After reading in last week's MESSENGER "Leona Wilks Sounds Toxin to Announce raid" he wrote in: "No doubt, toxin is the toxicated way of spelling tocsin."

We spend these drear, autumnal nights wondering when the sign at 147th and Western which reads — "Midlothian, 3 mi." will be corrected to read "Midlothian, 2 mi., 3000 jolts and nobody knows how many chuck holes."

If the present sign is right the center of Midlothian is 147th and Cicero which should make R. K. Cumming, Rudy Grill and George Baerlin feel that they were stung when they moved into the Hille Building.

The song of the autoist on 147th should be:

Merrily we bump along bump along,
bump along;
Merrily we bump along
Over this — road.

And his slogan — "Hold your hats, seats and Ladies."

The surest indication of prosperity, we know, is a ten minute wait for a hundred car freight at the Belt Line crossing on Western Avenue.

And if Uncle Casey meets another hundred car freight on his daily morning trip into Chicago it will be the surest indication that he'll be out looking for a job the same day.

The Mud takes delight in the exclusive publication of a conversation immediately preceding the ambulance call in Midlothian last week — McIntosh Water User — "I see the Gardens Water made the Mud again."

Gardens Native — "Well, we'd rather have the water in the Mud than mud in the water."

You may have noticed that Nuxated Iron ads are rarely seen since the McIntosh well started operation.

You may have noticed, also, that since Uncle Casey made that crack about Editor Andrews' haircut the Mud has been buried on an inside page.

Uncle Casey won't make another crack like that. He won't get a chance to — at least not for about another year.

Uncle Casey

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE next time you hear the drone of an airplane motor in the distance, run and get your field glasses and see if it is a United States army plane. (You will recognize it as an army plane, of course, by the familiar circle and star on the lower side of the wings.) If it is, look on the fuselage and see what the design is there. For all of our "war birds" now carry distinctive insignia and back of every one of them is an interesting story.

As everybody knows, the use of airplanes attained a swift development during the World war. At first there were no distinctive markings so that the aviators, winging their way through the clouds, had no means of knowing whether the airplane which they might encounter up there was friend or foe. There were a few exceptions to this rule, however. Baron Von Richtofen, the German ace, chose to paint his entire plane a brilliant red and no one could possibly have mistaken his plane for any other. Similarly the "Stork" squadron, led by the famous Frenchman, Capt. Charles Guynemier, was easily recognized and when the Ninety-fourth squadron, United States Air service, appeared on the western front with the symbol of "Uncle Sam's Hat in the Ring," it meant that the United States was really in the war at last.

Later the planes of the Central Powers were decorated with an Iron Cross, and the Allied Powers with three concentric rings of red, white and blue. All insignia which were strictly national had been dropped and all of the Allied aircraft carried the same general identification so that the enemy plane could not tell whether one bearing the red, white and blue rings was French, English, American or Belgian. From the lessons learned during the World war, and also to perpetuate some of its history, there has evolved the distinctive markings of our army aircraft. So when you see these symbols on the sides of our army planes you are looking at the very latest development in "heraldry" and you are seeing emblematic history in the making.

It dates from as recent as September 19, 1923, when an air corps order authorized the various organizations in the corps to submit designs of coats-of-arms and other insignia for approval. Since then each aviation unit, including some which are organized as yet only on paper, has chosen its symbol and has had it approved. In order to understand clearly the symbolism of these insignia, it should be explained first that the air corps is made up of groups, each of which in turn is made up of two or more squadrons. The groups are designated by numbers and by description of its chief function—whether pursuit, attack, bombardment or observation. The squadrons are also designated by number and description of their functions, but in addition to the pursuit, attack, bombardment and observation squadrons, there are also service squadrons, those hard-working units, charged with engineering and repair work for the group of which they are a part.

In the air corps at the present time there are only four theoretically complete tactical units. They are: the First Pursuit group, stationed at Selfridge field, Mich., and composed of the Seventeenth, Twenty-seventh and Ninety-fourth Pursuit squadrons and the Fifty-seventh Service squadron; the Second Bombardment group, stationed at Langley field, Va., and composed of the Twentieth, Forty-ninth and Ninety-sixth Bombardment squadrons and the Fifty-ninth Service squadron; the Third Attack group, stationed at Fort Crockett, Galveston, Texas, and composed of the Eighth, Thirtieth and Ninetieth Attack squadrons and the Sixtieth Service squadron; and the Ninth Observation group, stationed at Mitchell field, Long Island, N. Y., and composed of the Ninety-ninth Observation squadron, the Sixty-first Service squadron and the Fourteenth Photo section.

Each group has its own coat of arms and in addition to this coat of arms, each squadron has its own insignia. Under the order of September 19, 1923, all insignia must conform to the following general regulations: they must be of "real value" to the service, simple and yet possess some historic significance. They must be dignified and in good taste. They should tell a picture story significant of the organization. And of course they should be distinguishable in the air. On the other hand, the same order sets forth what they should or should not be. Insignia may not contain numerals, the letters U. S., the air corps insignia, the American flag, the United States coat-of-arms or any part of it, the complete arms of any state or country, outlines of geographic maps, foreign decorations, etc. It was this prohibition of using "the United States flag or any part of it" which brought about the passing of the famous "Hat-in-the-Ring" symbol.

The coat-of-arms of the First Pursuit group has a shield of green with five diagonal black stripes, representing the five organizations of the group when it was in active service. Green and black were the original colors of the air corps. Under the stripes are five Iron Crosses, representing the five major engagements of the World war in which this group participated. Most significant of the mission of this group is the crest—a field of sky blue, representing the high altitudes at which pursuit planes work. In this field a winged arrow darts downward, as does the pursuit plane in its attack. And over all is the motto "Aut Vincere Aut Mori" (Conquer or Die), which is exactly what pursuit craft must do. Having no defensive armament to their rear, these planes must fight it out to the end, for to turn tail would be to perish.

The coat-of-arms of the Second Bombardment group is very simple but it tells a story in a striking manner. The shield is a cloudy blue (significant of the sky) surmounted by five "paleis" (or scallops) of alternate green and black, representing the five major engagements—Cantigny, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Chateau Thierry and Meuse-Argonne—in which the group fought. In the center of the five paleis is a fleur de lis, symbolical of the organization's service in France. In the lower half of the shield four blue and gold bombs plunge downward and in the crest is a patch of blue sky, ringed with clouds, across which darts a jagged streak of lightning, denoting the suddenness and deadliness with which the bombs strike. The motto is self-explanatory: "Mors et Destructor" (Death and Destruction).

The Third Attack group is the baby of the air corps and the group as such has no war history, although its various squadrons has, as indicated by the 19 Iron Crosses in the border of the shield on the coat-of-arms, representing the number of enemy planes which members of these squadrons shot down during the World war. The crest is a knight's helmet and a pair of wings, symbolical of the knight errantry of an army aviator in an attack plane. The motto is "Non Solum Armis" (Not by Arms Alone).

Observation pilots are not primarily fighters, in the sense that pursuit, attack and bombardment pilots are, for their job is to fly over the lines and learn the disposition of the enemy forces. But they must also fight off attack in order to get back to their hangars safely. So the coat-of-arms of the Ninth Observation group proves that its members have been fighters, for across the shield is a line of four Iron Crosses which have a double symbolism—that the group participated in four major engagements in France and that it brought down the greatest number of enemy planes, four, in any one engagement. The crest of this outfit carries evidence of the fact that one of its squadrons was the first ever organized in the United States army, that it was the first ever to take part in an American military expedition and that it was living up to its motto of "Semper Paratus" (Always Ready) before the World war. The crest is a branch of cactus around which a rattlesnake is coiled. This represents the service of the First Aero squadron with Pershing's expedition into Mexico. Downward across the black and green shield runs a wavy white line which represents the Rio Grande.

The coat-of-arms usually is carried on only one plane in a group—the plane flown by the group commander. But the squadron insignia is worn by all the planes in that squadron and it is in the squadron symbols that you will see the greatest variety of emblems—the bizarre, the unusual, the humorous, the sinister and the patriotic—but all significant.

From the character of the pursuit squadron's duties, one would naturally expect these units to use symbols indicating the idea of the chase. So the Seventeenth Pursuit squadron of the First Pursuit group has for its insignia a snowy owl swooping down upon its prey—this bird also symbolizing the Arctic weather experienced five miles aloft at which elevation pursuit aviation fights. The Twenty-seventh Pursuit squadron of this same group has a hawk diving down to attack and the Ninety-fourth Pursuit squadron (the old "Hat-in-the-Ring" outfit) has the Indian uttering his war-whoop as he pursues the enemy. But the element of the chase is not evident in the symbols of all the pursuit outfits, as witness the insignia of the Ninety-fifth Pursuit squadron of the Seventh Bombardment group, now stationed at Rockwell field in California. It is a white mule doubled up, ready to give a mighty wallop to an enemy. The natural interpretation, of course, is that this is an army mule and every one knows the danger that lies in the heels of this long-eared equine.

Closely akin to the idea expressed in the insignia of the pursuit squadrons is that of the attack units. One of the most striking of these is the "grim reaper" which tells of the work of the Thirtieth Attack squadron of the Third Attack group. This white skeleton strides across a dark background, mowing as he goes with a yellow scythe, the blade of which is dripping with red, thus indicating vividly how an attack plane destroys troops and supply trains on the ground with machine gun fire and light bombardment.

The Ninetieth Attack squadron of the Third Attack group has an insignia which is more humorous than indicative of its war record. It consists of two red dice, showing two "naturals" which are indicative of the seven enemy planes which members of the squadron brought down during the World war. It served as a corps observation squadron in the Toul sector, at St. Mihiel and in both battles of the Meuse-Argonne and as an observation unit its job was to avoid fights. But as a matter of fact, it engaged in 23 aerial battles, winning seven victories and suffering three casualties, two killed and one wounded.

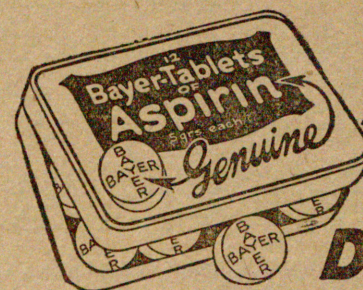

One of the best known of all the squadron insignia is that of the Twentieth Bombardment squadron of the Second Bombardment group. It is a sweeping-mustached, viciously-grinning pirate dashing to attack with a grenade in hand. He treads upon a horizontal aerial bomb with two bands and eleven Iron Crosses, recalling the major offensives in which the squadron participated during the World war and the eleven enemy planes which it brought down while defending itself on its bombing raids over the lines. A red devil thumbing his nose at his target (whatever that target may be) on the ground and holding an aerial bomb is the insignia of the Ninety-sixth Bombardment squadron of the Second Bombardment group.

The fact that Observation squadrons sometimes fight, although that is not primarily their duty, is reflected in the insignia of the Ninety-first Observation squadron, stationed at San Francisco. It shows an armored knight on his richly-caparisoned horse, bearing a shield upon which appears a doublecross, in pursuit of a red devil and prodding him in the rear with his lance. Not so grim as the insignia of the other three branches of an air corps group are the symbols of the Service squadrons, whose hard-working members "keep the fighters in the air." A beaver, symbol of their busy life, is worn by the Fifty-ninth Service squadron of the Second Bombardment group. The emblem of the Fifty-seventh Service squadron of the First Pursuit group is a hawk with a broken wing, perched on a post, while that of the Sixty-sixth Service squadron shows a large gear wheel, with four smaller gears radiating from the master gear at 90 degree intervals. This latter squadron is part of the Composite group in the Philippine islands and the four smaller gears represent the four squadrons of a well-balanced Composite group—Pursuit, Attack, Bombardment and Observation.

"Legally Dead" Mexican

Loses Vast Properties

Juventino Ledesma is a man who has been officially pronounced dead and is unable to recover vast properties belonging to him while officially alive. His nephew, Jose Alvarez, inherited from him when news reached Mexico that he had crossed the Great Divide in Canada and declares that he can have no dealings with a dead man. Forced to abandon Mexico for his participation in a revolution against General Obregon, Juventino Ledesma started life anew as a lumberer in Canada. Rolling logs down a stream three years ago, he and a score of men lost their balance in a rapid. Knocked on the head by a log, the swift current carried him away and he was discovered unconscious many miles beyond the site of the mishap. Suffering from amnesia and unbalanced mind, he was reported missing until recently when he unexpectedly appeared before his nephew, Jose, to claim his property.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. They lunch together and recall their school days. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. The love-making progresses rapidly. They make a runaway marriage.

"Not at all," said Will quickly. "But anyhow, we are married. I know this strikes you suddenly, sir, but we just decided in haste, and as we want nothing but your blessing—"

"Be still!" exclaimed papa passionately, and he turned to Ernestine. "Where were you married? By whom?"

Will took the conversation into his own hands with deliberation. "We went to town about noon, went to the courthouse and got our license, then to a jeweler and bought the ring and waited while it was engraved." Ernestine held up her slim hand, and showed the astonishing gold band on her third finger. "Then we took a taxi out to my mother's house, got her and went to the church I was reared in, in Avondale, and were married."

"But why this mad haste?" spluttered papa, who was almost incoherent. "Ernestine," turning to his daughter, in renewed determination to have nothing to do with Will, "what's got into you? I am sure you have been under some dreadful influence. I can't understand how you could act this way. I can't believe it."

He was furious, he was undone, but he still had a note of command in his voice. Ernestine felt his strength with terror.

"Papa—" she began, but Will cut in resolutely, so that in spite of papa's determination to talk to Ernestine the situation narrowed itself constantly to papa and Will.

"Ernestine was afraid, sir, that you might try to separate us. My own instinct in the matter was that we should talk this over with you, but I see, now, that she was right. You must understand, sir, that we are married, and your objections are futile."

"Ernestine had reason to fear me," papa said in a voice none of them had ever heard from him before. Ernestine felt herself shiver under it. Papa had no intention of considering himself futile.

"She had reason to fear me, and so had you. I suspect your fear was more important than her own. Even if she were a fool, you might have been decent about it. I have no intention whatever of letting her go away from here with you. You'll learn, sir, that there are such things as annulments, even as divorce. Just because she has made one foolish mistake, is no reason why I should let her ruin her whole life. You have behaved very badly, but your behavior ends here and now. Ernestine stays here. You may go, and I will deal with you outside the house."

Ernestine felt that everything was lost, but Will only laughed. If papa were new and strange, so was her young husband, for he seemed to glow, to fill out, to be bigger and stronger.

"Don't be silly," he said. "Ernestine is of age. She married me of her own free will, and if you tried any such stunts, she would say so. Our marriage is entirely legal. It stands before everything else. She is now my wife, and my home is her home, and you can't detain her."

"We'll see," said papa grimly, and then mamma broke in.

"You shouldn't have, Ernestine. You shouldn't have run off and got married, without telling mamma. It's the biggest, the most important thing in your life—and to take such a step without your people knowing it! I can't bear to think you'd go off and be married—and not tell me."

"I'm sorry, mamma," said Ernestine in distress, and papa took things up again. He had made a decision.

"Go to your room, Ernestine," he said in a voice of stern command, "and stay there until I can talk to you. If you ladies will excuse us, we will settle this among ourselves. Do you hear me?" he said sharply, turning his furious eyes upon Ernestine. She faltered, half turned to go in automatic command, for papa had always ruled his home, without much effort, but Will put his hand on her arm.

"Stay here, Ernestine," he said in a low voice, and she paused, undecided, while mamma and Lillian seemed to be grouped together on the other side of the room.

"I can understand your distress, sir," said Will. "I can see just how you feel about this, not knowing me at all and not understanding my motives. But you exceed your authority. If you should detain Ernestine here by force, I have only to go out and get the nearest policeman and come back for her. You can't do it."

There was a moment of incredulous silence, and papa half turned to Loring, in appeal, and Loring said in a low tone, "He's right."

Will followed this advantage swiftly. "After all, what have you against me, except you think I may want Ernestine's money? We have decided to do without that. I'm not a stranger to you. You've known my father for thirty years. You know my people, that they are honorable and decent. There's no reason at all why I shouldn't make any marriage I choose, even with Ernestine. I'm working. I can take care of her."

Papa raised his clenched fist above his head, as though he would strike Will, and Ernestine made a little moan and mamma screamed. But Loring put his hand on papa's arm, and drew him back. And in that moment Lillian went to Ernestine and put her arms around her and kissed her.

"Oh, Lillian!" Ernestine cried, and burst into terrible tears. "Papa, papa," she cried, turning from Lillian to her father, and holding out her hands, "don't quarrel with us. I can't bear it. I love Will. I wanted to marry him. Let us go ahead with our own married life, now, but don't quarrel with us."

Of Course Papa Was Helpless, and He Said So With a Shrug.

"It's you who have broken faith," said papa. "Not your mother and I. You've put this stranger before us. You can't have both."

Ernestine was appalled.

"You mean that I can't come home?" Papa attained a grim smile.

"That's what I mean," he said, but now mamma broke in hysterically.

"I won't be separated from Ernestine. I won't permit it," she cried, and went to her younger daughter and took her in her arms. "Darling, you can come home as long as mamma lives here. I will see you every day. It's dreadful. It's hard on all of us, and it will be terrible for you. But mamma will not let her little girl go away like this."

"Elaine!" said papa, but she turned to him, as full of anger as he.

"The child is married," she exclaimed. "She may have made a mistake, but if she has, it is only a reason for standing by her. This is my home, as well as yours. I won't be instructed to let my little girl go out friendless. You may do what you like with me, and send me away, too, if you can, but I am going to see Ernestine. I am going to have her here."

Of course papa was helpless, and he said so with a shrug.

"Mamma," said Ernestine, "I am willing to take the responsibility for my marriage. After all, it's I who married Will."

"Not you alone," said mamma vigorously. "The whole family has married him, and we may as well realize it. For nobody marries just one of the Bricelands. We are all going to stand together, always. Papa, we will have to make the best of it. The marriage will have to stand."

Papa would not look at her, nor answer.

"We'll have to go," said Will.

"Goodby, darling," said mamma, and embraced her. "I'll see you soon."

"Goodby, papa," Ernestine faltered, but papa held his stubborn attitude.

"I'll have to go upstairs and get some things," murmured Ernestine, as they went into the hall.

Lillian went upstairs with Ernestine. Mamma came out and put her hand on Will's arm.

"Be good to her," she implored. "If you can't take care of her, if she's not happy, let her come back."

"I will, Mrs. Briceland," he said soberly. "I appreciate what you have done."

Mamma wept afresh.

"It is hard for her father. He worships her. You must understand him."

Will followed this advantage swiftly.

"After all, what have you against me, except you think I may want Ernestine's money? We have decided

It is a terrible blow to him. He will come around."

The girls came down the stairs, and after a moment Ernestine and Will were out in the dark street again, with her small dressing case in Will's hands. The family stood about in the living room in stricken silence.

The silence lasted for some moments, then Mrs. Briceland turned to her husband.

"You should never have let her go off like that," she said reproachfully. "What will she do?"

"I had no intention of letting her go, if you hadn't interfered," he exclaimed. "I was only threatening her with the loss of the family, in order to get her to stay here—to gain a little time."

"She wouldn't have done it," said Lillian. "She's too crazy about him. It probably was her idea that they get married first. She meant it. You couldn't have kept her."

"How much do you suppose he earns, on the Sun?" asked mamma, and Loring answered:

"Probably anywhere from twenty-five to forty dollars a week."

At that papa threw up his hands in a gesture of despair and turned to leave the room, but he looked back at his wife daskly.

"If you had stood by me," he said to her, "if we had all stood together, we could have held her here. You went back on me, both you and Lillian. It gave them courage. Now, you can think of her, God knows where, with that upstart." He went into the hall, and mamma followed him, her bright persistent voice coming down the stairs:

"You shouldn't have let them go. We might have kept them both here, and taken care of them. Lewis, you'll have to make up your mind to give in, and get him a better job—"

The voices trailed off, and an upstairs door closed upon them. Grandmother went stiffly out of the room. Lillian began to move about the room, satisfying her need for order by pushing the chairs in place, straightening the pillows and moving the things on the table. Loring stood by the fire, staring into it, his face flushed, one hand opening and closing nervously.

Lillian came and spoke to him in a voice which was already like mamma's.

"I'm sorry you got into this," she said. "It's terrible. How can Ernestine act that way? She's the most haphazard thing. But this is the worst yet. I feel as though she had ruined herself. But you aren't going to be angry with her, are you, Loring?"

"No," he said. "No, I won't be angry with her. Your mother's right. The family must stand by her."

Lillian shuddered a little.

"It seems dreadful to me," she said. "Ernestine out somewhere in Chicago, with that man. I don't see how she can be crazy about him in the first place, and how she could have married him in the second."

Loring reached out his hand and ran his fingers down the crepe sleeve of her dress, caught her fingers and held them in his own.

"Would you do that much," he asked wistfully, "if you cared for a man? Would you defy everything for him?"

"I don't know," said Lillian honestly. "I don't know. I want things nice. I want some plan and arrangement to my life."

"But if the man you cared for was not—eligible," he persisted, "would you marry him anyhow?"

"It's not a fair question," protested Lillian, and then added softly: "I don't know what I would do. Because I've cared for only one man, and he has been eligible in every way. So I can't imagine how I would act under other circumstances."

There was a little silence, and then he said, in a stifled voice:

"Is it I, Lillian?"

She looked up at him, and his face was full of suffering. Her own was compassionate.

"Did you care for Ernestine, Loring?" she asked him, but he shook himself quickly.

"No, no!" he exclaimed. "Not—that way. I'm fond of her. She's been like a little sister to me, always. But it's you I care for. It's you I want for my wife. Is it possible that you care for me, Lillian?"

"I always have," she answered simply, and he stared down at her, and again his voice was queer and strained.

"I'm like Ernestine," he said, "what I want is love."

She put up her fair sweet face, and he kissed her placid lips.

"I love you, Loring," she assured him, and he took her roughly into his arms.

"You hurt me," she complained in a moment, and he released her and stood holding her hand gently.

"I want love," he said again with poignancy, and Lillian assured him with her quick bright voice that she loved him.

Grecian Influence on Culture of Old Rome

Almost as far back as the history of Rome extends Greek influences are to be traced in the development of Roman culture. The Roman people were conservative and slow to cultivate the artistic sense. Rome had little creative genius. In her whole history she did not produce an artist such as Phidias and Praxiteles. The nature of the Roman was usually practical and idealized power, law and profit. The Romans never created a distinctive style of architecture such as the Greeks. They borrowed their architecture from the Etruscans and the Greeks. The literary life of Rome has a profound effect upon mankind—Cicero with his orations, political and educational treatises; Caesar with his commentaries on the Gallic war; Salust with his history of Rome; the poets Lucretius and Catullus. These poets, however, do not compare with the Iliad and Odyssey of Homer, the Greek philosophers Plato and Aristotle, Socrates, Xenophon and the orators Lyais and Isocrates.

Known Only by Tradition

Tradition has attached the name of Dismas to the thief who repented on the cross, when the Savior was crucified, and Gestas to the impatient one. Both names are highly improbable.

Lesson for October 5

ZACHARIAS AND ELISABETH: LIFE IN A PIOUS JEWISH HOME

LESSON TEXT—Luke 1:5-80.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping to Make Our Homes Good.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping to Make Our Homes Good.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What I Owe to My Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Makes a Home Christian?

I. A Godly Husband and Wife (Luke 1:5-7).

The name Zacharias means "Jehovah hath remembered," and the name Elisabeth means "A covenant maker."

1. When they lived (v. 5).

"In the days of Herod the king." They lived in a day when godlessness was rife. The priesthood was corrupt, and the ruling classes most wicked.

2. Their character (v. 6).

Both were righteous before God. Many appear to be righteous before man who are not righteous before God. They were so mated that they walked in the commandments of the Lord blameless. The highest in wedded life can be attained only when both husband and wife are united in Jesus Christ. Their practical living was manifested in obedience to God's commandments.

2. They were childless (v. 7).
Though this godly couple were well mated and possessed the joy of the Lord in their souls, there was a real lack in their home. No home is quite ideal into which no child has come.

11. A Son Promised (Luke 1:8-23).

1. By whom (vv. 11, 19)?

Gabriel, a special messenger of God, appeared and made known the good news to Zacharias.

2. When (vv. 8-14)?

While officiating as priest this good news came to him. From verse 13 the implication is that Zacharias had been praying definitely about this matter. While he burned incense, which is typical of prayer, the multitudes without were praying.

3. Characteristics of the child (vv. 15-17).

(1) Shall be great in the sight of the Lord (v. 15).
Though the people did not greatly esteem him, he was highly esteemed by the Lord.

(2) Shall drink neither wine nor strong drink (v. 15).

He was to be a Nazirite, separating himself from sensuous things and dedicating himself unto the Lord (Numbers 6:1-6).

(3) Shall be filled with the Holy Ghost (v. 15).

The energy of the divine Spirit was needed to enable him to lead the people to repentance (v. 16).

(4) Shall go in the spirit and power of Elijah (v. 17).

In this power he was to prepare the people for the coming of the Savior, and the salvation which he was to bring.

4. Zacharias asking for a sign (vv. 18-23).

Although the aged priest was earnestly praying for the salvation of Israel, the gracious promise of the angel which was the beginning of that salvation staggered his faith. The angel gave him a sign. Because he refused to praise God in faith for this gracious promise, God caused his tongue to be silent until the promise was fulfilled. God wants us to believe his promises no matter how contrary to reason they may seem.

Peddler Fails
To Jip Orland
Park Housewife

That it does not always pay to buy from peddlars was demonstrated at Orland Park Monday of this week. A peddler tried to sell potatoes to an Orland housewife saying he had sold 50 bags of the same potatoes to James Creer, local store keeper that same day. He was asking $3.25 a bag for the spuds. The housewife, however, became suspicious of the peddler and called Mr. Creer and found he had not bought potatoes of the peddler and what potatoes he did have on hand he was selling for $2.75 a bag. Needless to say the peddler made no sale and the housewife saved 50 cents on the deal. Moral: buy at home.

TINLEY PARK

Our illustrious fishermen, Walter Mancke, Clyde Rice, G. Dini and others returned from a fishing trip to Wis., Friday, bringing 60 pounds of fine fish with them. They tell a story of catching a 30 inch muskie which jumped into the boat after being hooked and put up a big fight. Clyde Rice has got wounds in his hands to show the fish had sharp teeth and that the story is not "fish."
